The financial institution is not required to do so if IRBM has not made a prior request to the customer for the information. IRBM will state the specific circumstances in which this situation arises in the written notice. This includes circumstances where the request is of an urgent nature or in the case where prior notification to the customer is likely to undermine the actions of the foreign applicant authority.
3. Performance of functions of the financial institution which are outsourced.	Any person engaged by the financial institution to perform the outsourced function	(a) The financial institution must comply with all relevant requirements applicable to outsourcing arrangements as may be specified by the Bank; and (b) The person having access to the customer information must enter into a binding non-disclosure agreement with the financial institution.

5. Performance of any supervisory functions, exercise any of supervisory powers or discharge any of supervisory duties by a relevant authority outside Malaysia which exercises functions corresponding to those of the Bank under the FSA or IFSA.	Any officer of the relevant authority authorised to receive the documents or information.	(a) The relevant authority outside Malaysia must be the foreign supervisory authority responsible for the group-wide supervision of the financial group to which the financial institution belongs; (b) A request for customer information must be made by the authority outside Malaysia in writing to the financial institution stating the purpose for which the information is required;

¹⁵ This condition will not apply where the information disclosed is in the form of a summary or collection of information set out in such manner as does not enable information relating to any particular customer of the financial institution to be ascertained from it, or at the time of disclosure the information has already been made lawfully available to the public from any source other than the financial institution.

		(c) No information relating to deposit accounts must be disclosed to the authority outside Malaysia; (d) The Bank must be notified of any provision of customer information to the authority outside Malaysia. Such notification must be submitted to Pengarah, Jabatan Penyeliaan Konglomerat Kewangan or Pengarah, Jabatan Penyeliaan Perbankan, as applicable; and (e) The financial institution must obtain an undertaking from the officers of the relevant authority authorised to receive the customer information that the customer information must be used for the sole purpose of performing a supervisory function and such information will not be revealed to any other party.
6. Conduct of centralised functions, which include internal audit, risk management, finance or information technology or any other centralised function within the financial group.	The head office or holding company of a financial institution whether in or outside Malaysia or any other person¹⁶, designated by the head office or holding company to perform such functions.	(a) Centralised functions refer to functions established at a regional office or the head office for the purposes of group oversight and compliance with regulatory requirements. They exclude any ad hoc assignments or one-off activity to be carried out by the regional or head office¹⁷; (b) The disclosure of customer information must be strictly on a need-to-know basis; (c) The head office or holding company must be a regulated financial institution or a regulated institution which is subject to equivalent obligations under any law or regulation (in or outside

¹⁶ Which may include an external party.

		Malaysia) which protects confidentiality of customer information; and (d) The financial institution must comply with all relevant regulatory requirements and conditions applicable to centralised functions as may be specified by the Bank.
7. Due diligence exercise approved by the board of directors of the financial institution in connection with- (a) merger and acquisition; (b) capital raising exercise; or (c) sale of assets or whole or part of business	Any person participating or otherwise involved in the due diligence exercise approved by the board of the financial institution.	(a) The disclosure must only be made to the named individuals responsible for the due diligence exercise and must be time-bound; (b) The person having access to the customer information must enter into a binding non-disclosure agreement with the financial institution; and (c) Customer information must only be disclosed after the financial institution has obtained the approval of the Bank or the Minister of Finance, as the case may be, in respect of: (i) the capital raising exercise or sale of assets or business; or (ii) a merger and acquisition.
8. Documents or information which is permitted in writing by the customer, the executor or administrator of the customer, or in the case of a customer who is incapacitated,	Any person permitted by the customer or, as the case may be, the executor, administrator or legal personal representative.	Effective from 1 January 2024, a financial institution seeking a consent¹⁸ from the customer, executor, administrator or legal personal representative of the customer must comply with the following conditions¹⁹: a) Specific - The financial institution must ensure that the terms seeking

¹⁸ These conditions are applicable to FIs seeking customers' consent for the disclosure of their information to third parties from 1 January 2024 onwards. These conditions do not apply to consent obtained from customers prior to the effective date.

any other legal personal representative.		a customer's consent are clear, concise, and written in plain language. Further, the relevant terms must be specific in relation to the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> (i) to whom the disclosure will be made²⁰; (ii) the purpose of such disclosure; and (iii) the information that will be disclosed; b) Voluntary²¹ - The financial institution must not, as a condition of providing a financial product/service, compel or coerce a customer to give consent for the disclosure of his/her information to third parties beyond what is necessary for the provision of the financial product/service or the performance of the contract with the customer. The financial institution is prohibited from obtaining a customer's consent by asking the customer to indicate consent to a statement or term that combines agreement to the disclosure of his/her information with other matters in a single statement of consent²²; c) Explicit and deliberate²³ - A customer must explicitly opt in or
---	--	--

²⁰ It would be sufficient for the FI to indicate the categories of third parties to whom the customer information will be disclosed subject to controls in place to protect the information. For example, disclosure to business partners for the promotion of financial products/services. It is unacceptable to use descriptions of third parties which are too broad or vague. For example, disclosure to any third parties as the FI deems fit.

		deliberately agree²⁴ to the disclosure of his/her customer information by the financial institution to a third party. Hence, silence or inaction on the part of the customer does not constitute an explicit and deliberate consent by the customer. The financial institution is prohibited from obtaining a customer's consent using pre-ticked²⁵ consent statements; and d) Revocable upon request, subject to the requirements of applicable laws and for the provision of the financial product/service to the customer²⁶ - A customer must be allowed to withdraw or revoke his/her consent for the disclosure of his/her information at any time, unless such disclosure is necessary for the financial institution to comply with any legal or contractual requirements. Further, the customer must be informed of his/her rights to withdraw or revoke the consent and how to effect such withdrawal or revocation of consent. The process for withdrawing consent must be as straightforward as it was to obtain the consent, for example via online platforms. The financial institution must cease the disclosure of customer information based on the customer's consent as soon as practicable after the withdrawal of the consent. A reasonable time frame would be not more than 7
--	--	--

²⁴ For example, signing a consent form, ticking an opt-in box on paper or electronically, or clicking an opt-in button online.

		calendar days from the day the financial institution receives the withdrawal of consent notice. The financial institution shall also allow existing customers to withdraw their consents given before the effective date, unless the disclosure of customer information affects the ability of the financial institution to comply with any legal or contractual requirements. The financial institution shall maintain records of any customer consent it has relied upon when making such disclosure in a manner that is accessible, wherein the financial institution must be able to produce such evidence upon request by the customer or relevant authorities including the Bank.

- S 13.3 Financial institutions are required to put in place adequate controls over the disclosure of customer information to any parties which are permitted under the FSA, IFSA or DFIA. The control measures must, at a minimum, include-
- (a) the processes to be undertaken by responsible officers to verify the authenticity of the orders or requests;
 - (b) documentation requirements; and
 - (c) authority levels for approving disclosure of customer information which must be at an appropriate senior level.
- S 13.4 Financial institutions intending to apply for the Bank's approval for disclosure of customer information under section 134(1)(b) of the FSA, section 146(1)(b) of the IFSA or section 120(1)(b) of the DFIA must complete and submit the application form in Appendix V to the Bank.
